

PASSION – AND STEAM – DRIVE THE REEFSTEAMERS' OPEN DAY

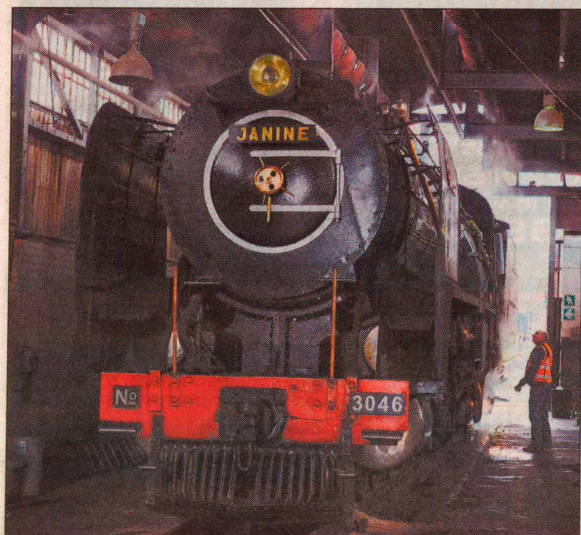

FULL STEAM AHEAD. Fireman George Hoddinot looks out of the GMAM, 4079, named Lindie Lou, as Reefsteamers move the locomotives around their depot in Germiston at the weekend. This is a Garratt-type locomotive was introduced in the 1950s for working branch lines and is one of only two operating in South Africa. It is owned by the Sandstone Heritage Trust. Reefsteamers is holding an open day at the historic Germiston Steam Locomotive Depot on July 28. Visit www.reefsteamers.com for more information. Pictures: Michel Bega.

TIDYING UP. A volunteer cleans a locomotive at the Reefsteamers depot, as the Reefsteamers prepare their locomotives for the open day. Reefsteamers is a non profit, Section 21 Company.

HARD AT WORK. A Reefsteamers volunteer works in the workshop at their depot in Germiston in preparation for the open day.

CHOO-CHOO. Reefsteamers volunteer Aidan McCarthy examines a Class 15F steam locomotive, 3046, named Janine, as it is shunted around the Reefsteamers depot in Germiston. the steam day.

READY TO PULL. Volunteer driver Shaun Ackerman is seen aboard Janine. The locomotives are restored and maintained by volunteers.